FLORIST TERMS

TYPES OF BOUQUETS:

- Cascade: A waterfall-like spill of blooms and greenery anchored in a handheld base.
- Composite: A handmade creation where different petals are wired together on a single stem, creating the illusion of one big flower.
- Hand-tied: A thick gathering of smaller blooms tied together with wire or floral tape and completed with a ribbon.
- Biedermeier: A group up of concentric circles of different flowers for a slightly striped effect.
- Round: Typically larger and consisting of large, loosely arranged flowers, like peonies or roses.

CENTERPIECE SHAPES

- Pedestal: Mainly based on the shape of the vessel, which looks like a pedestal. Flowers tend to cascade over the sides.
- Tiered: A series of arrangements are stacked in tiers, small to big, giving the centerpiece a slightly triangular shape.
- Globe: Flowers are arranged in a mounded circular shape or rounded vessel.
- Trumpet: These arrangements are wider at the top and narrower at the base -- just like the instrument.

TYPES OF VASES

- Bubble: This vase has a spherical shape. A line of them along a rectangular banquet table looks gorgeous, no matter the formality of the occasion.
- Cube: This modern shape can hold its own in the middle of the table, but a few small ones around a tall, slim vase are ultra-chic too.
- Pilsner: Named for the narrow-bottom, wide-mouth beer glass it resembles, this vase usually holds flowers loosely packed in a round shape.
- Pedestal: Medium in height, this vase features a shape similar to that of a trophy.
- Cylinder: The tube-like shape is ideal for showing off submerged blooms, like tropical orchids or calla lilies.
